Summertime and outdoor meals go together, but the hot weather and picnicing can create some food problems.

One problem may be salmonellosis - a food-borne illness experienced by over two million Americans each year. Although rarely fatal, salmonellosis does cause severe discomfort in the form of nausea, etc., within 8-72 hours after the contaminated food is eaten.

Here are some ways to keep your outdoor meals safe.

1. Use an insulated cooler for transporting potential hazardous foods such as eggs, some salads, cream pies, and other moist prepared foods.

2. Don't allow foods to sit out on the picnic table for long periods of time.

Wash hands well before starting to prepare food and when returning to food after doing something else.

4. Make certain all utensils and work surfaces (including cutting boards) are clean.

5. Include foods in outdoor meals that are not handled extensively during preparation. These include cheese, crackers, fresh and canned fruits, and raw vegetables. Remember to wash fresh fruits and vegetables before eating.

Just because it's an outdoor meal doesn't mean anything goes. Oftentimes large groups of people are involved and the conditions for food poisoning are more prevalent. Why ruin a good time with a bad after-effect? Make this summer a safe one by handling foods properly.

Medicare Extended To Many Disabled Starting July 1

Starting July 1, Medicare coverage will be extended to 1.7 million disabled people under 65.

Disabled people who have received social security disability payments for two years or more will be able to get help from Medicare in paying their hospital and doctor bills and other covered services, according to Mr. William J. Vinson, social security district manager in Lynchburg. Medicare was previously available only to people 65 or over.

"Those eligible for coverage," Mr. Vinson said, "will include disabled workers, disabled widows and disabled dependent widowers between 50 and 65, disabled mothers 50 or older who get social security benefits because they have a young or disabled children in their care, and people who get benefits because they were disabled before age 22."

People getting monthly social security checks because they are disabled will be notified if they are eligible for Medicare. Widows 50 or over who have been severely disabled the last two years but haven't filed a claim because they're getting checks as mother's caring for young or disabled children should apply for disabled widows benefits to see if they can get Medicare.

People under 65 who need kidney transplants or dialysis will be eligible for Medicare too, if they've worked long enough under social security," Mr. Vinson said.

"This health insurance protection will also be available to insured workers' wives or husbands and dependent children who need dialysis or kidney transplants," he said.

Eligibility can begin in the 3rd month after dialysis begins and can last through a year after the month dialysis ends or the patient had a kidney transplant, Mr. Vinson explained.

Under recent changes in the social security law, the hospital insurance part of Medicare will also be extended to people 65 and older who previously didn't qualify for coverage because they haven't worked long enough under social security, Mr. Vinson said. Initially, the premium will be $7.a month for Medicare hospital insurance protection. The premium may be increased later if hospital costs rise.

"People buying hospital coverage under this protection will also be required to enroll for medical insurance coverage," Mr. Vinson said.

Starting July 1, the basic monthly premium for medical insurance part of Medicare will be $6.30, an increase of 50 cents a month over the current rate.

Disabled people required seven times as much hospital care as other people and three times as much service from doctors," Mr. Vinson said.

Medicare is administered by the Social Security Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

For more information about changes in Medicare, call, write or visit any social security office. The Lynchburg office is located in the Tarkington Building, 2600 Memorial Avenue, Lynchburg. Office hours are 8:30 to 4:30 Monday through Friday. The office is closed on Saturdays. The telephone number is 847-8856.

green Avenue. The resolution calls for the construction of sidewalks, curb and gutters to be extended from the existing sidewalk on Evergreen Avenue to Road 727 and on up Evergreen Avenue on the left side of the road to the existing town limits. The town will be required to pay 50% of the cost of this construction.

In extending the sidewalk on Evergreen Avenue it will help to insure the safety of students and pedestrians going into and leaving the new senior high school now under construction.

In other business it was reported that water and sewer lines along Virginia Avenue - extended entering property owned by Thomasville Furniture Industries are now being layed and both the water and the sewer lines should be complete within a few days.

More Social Security For Elderly, Blind and Disabled

The Lynchburg social security office is now taking applications for supplemental security income payments, a federal program scheduled to start in 1974 that will establish an income floor for people in financial need who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled, according to Mr. William J. Vinson, social security district manager.

But people already getting state old age assistance, or state aid because they are blind or disabled, don't have to apply, he said. They'll be getting more information later this year about how the program will help them.

"The first monthly payments under the federal program will be made in January 1974," Mr. Vinson said. "until then, state and local public assistance offices will continue to make payments in the usual way."

People not getting public assistance now who think they may be eligible for the new federal payments should call or write social security to find out if they should apply, according to Mr. Vinson.

"Federal supplemental security income payments will be made by the Social Security Administration," Mr. Vinson said. "But the program will be financed by federal general revenues - not by social security contributions from workers and employers. It's not the same as social security."

The aim of the new program is to provide supplemental payments in cases of need so that people 65 or over, or blind, or disabled will have a basic cash income of at least $130 a month for one person and $195 month for a couple.

"This doesn't mean that every eligible person or couple will be getting that much from the federal government every month," Mr. Vinson said. "The amount of the federal payment any person gets will depend on how much other income he has. Eligibility for federal payments will depend not only on the amount of income people have but on the value of their assets.

"If you're single - or married but not living with your husband or wife - you can own things worth up to $1,500 and still get federal payments," he said. "A couple can own things up to $2,250 and get payments. Not everything you own has to be counted toward your total assets, however.

"A home of reasonable value will not be counted as an asset," Mr. Vinson said. "In addition, the federal government will not put liens on the homes of people getting federal payments. Personal effects and households goods won't count in most cases. Insurance policies or a car may not affect eligibility either, but it will depend on their value."

Certain income also will be disregarded in deciding on an application for supplemental security income. The first $20 a month of income generally won't affect the federal payment at all, Mr. Vinson said.

"In addition, people who are working part time should know that the first $65 a month of earnings won't be included in counting their income and only half of the rest of their additional earnings will be counted," he said.

Apart from earnings, other income above the first $20 a month generally will reduce the federal payment. "This includes social security benefits, veterans payments, workmen's compensation, pensions, annuities and gifts," Mr. Vinson said. "And if you live in someone else's household, your basic federal payment will be reduced by one-third before other income that may affect your payment is deducted."

"People who need more information to decide whether they might be eligible for the federal payments should call social security 847-8856 or write to the office at 2600 Memorial Avenue, Lynchburg, Va., 24501," he said.

"Even though payments cannot start until January 1974, we're starting to take applications now so we can process them ahead of time and avoid delays that might occur if there's a rush of applications right at the end of the year," Mr. Vinson said.
